Countries have traditional clothes. Scotland has the famous kilt. It looks like a skirt — but men, not women, wear it.

Long ago, the kilt was a kind of coat with no sleeves. Men covered their bodies with the kilt around their shoulders. They pulled it over the head when rain fell. It was good for soldiers. They could wear it in rain or sun. Now people call it the great kilt. Later, people in Scotland made the kilt short. Then it looked like a skirt. They called it the small kilt. It was good for walking, because the legs could move freely. Now it is a famous symbol of Scotland! Often, the kilt has many colors. The pattern of the colors is a "plaid." Lines of color in a plaid go up and down. Sometimes we call it "check." A plaid looks very beautiful. The plaid is a famous symbol of Scotland, too. Men in Scotland do not wear kilts every day. They wear kilts on special days like holidays! Then, the colorful kilt tells people, "I am from Scotland!"

17. Choose the one that is NOT correct.

- ① Kilt is a Scotland's traditional clothes.
- ② We call plaid "check."
- ③ Soldiers also wore kilt.
- ④ Women wore kilt like men.

In a novel, Holmes lived in a house on Baker Street in London. The address is 221B Baker Street, London. It also became famous when Holmes became popular. But like most other things about Holmes, his address was only in stories. The real house numbers on Baker Street stopped at 100. There never really was a 221B Baker Street. But what happens when someone sends a letter to 221B Baker Street? Then, the post office sends the letter to the Sherlock Holmes Museum. The museum's address is "221B Baker Street." The museum keeps the letters to Holmes. In the museum, you can see his chair beside the fireplace. His picture, pipe, notebook and slippers all are there. But Holmes never lived there!

Do you know Anne of Green Gables? It is a story about a girl, Anne. She lived in a farmhouse with a green roof, Green Gables. Anne was an orphan, and lived in the house to help an old brother and a sister. She was bright and talked a lot. She dreamed of many things. She grew up to be a good girl. Anne was not a real person, but a girl in a novel. But Anne was much like a real girl. Her name was Lucy Montgomery. Lucy wrote Anne of Green Gables. She used her memories of childhood in her town, Cavendish, Canada. And she wrote about Anne's life at Avonlea. Green Gables was also not a real place. Lucy saw a farmhouse in her town, and wrote about Green Gables. So Anne and Green Gables are not real, but they are much like a real girl and a real house. Many writers use their own memories when they write a novel. So a person in a novel is much like a real person.

18. Fill in the blanks.

In a novel	-	Real
Anne	-	Montgomery
Green Gable	-	a farmhouse

19. What is the best word for the blanks?

inside

People always dreamed of flying like a bird. We can fly in an airplane today. But what did people do to fly when they didn't have planes? They made balloons to ride in. People started to ride in balloons a very long time ago. The first balloon flew in 1783.

Nowadays, people still like to go up in balloons because it's fun! How could a balloon rise up into the air? People filled a balloon with hot air or light gas. Then, the air inside a balloon got lighter than the outside air. When they let go of the balloon, it rose and floated! And wind carried the balloon.

Who first went up in a balloon? Animals did! A duck, a cock, and a lamb traveled in a balloon in 1783. People took them in a balloon to put it to the test. They did the test because going up in a balloon looked very dangerous. But the animals had a great trip. When the air inside the balloon cooled, the balloon landed on the ground safely. Later, people began to ride in a balloon. Today, people are enjoying flying in a balloon.

20. Choose the one that is NOT correct.

- ① Animals traveled in a balloon first.
- ② The first balloon flew in 1783.
- ③ Nowadays, people like to ride in balloons.
- ④ The air inside a balloon is not lighter than the outside air.

We build igloos with blocks of heavy snow. Igloos have a window, a door, and a hole to get fresh air. Igloos can be big or small. Sometimes we make a big igloo out of two or three little igloos. We make tunnels between the little igloos. Then we have a big igloo!

Can we feel warm _____ igloos? Yes. Igloos are warm _____. Sometimes it is 20 degrees _____, even when it is minus 40 degrees outside!

This is because an igloo's snow walls do not lose heat. Snow has power to keep heat _____. People have a little lamp or make a fire _____ igloos. The snow of igloos may melt a little. But the snow freezes again, and it makes igloos strong. So, they don't melt away, and we can stay warm.
